About Jönköping University and HLK

Jönköping University is home to 11,000 students, 1,200 of whom are international students. Research and education are carried out at four schools:

- Jönköping International Business School
- School of Education and Communication (HLK)
- School of Engineering
- School of Health Sciences

The School of Education and Communication has four main research areas—School Based Research and Development, Lifelong Learning, Media and Communication Science, and CHILD (Children, Health, Intervention, Learning, Development)—and features four profiles of study—innovative learning, health & learning, media & communication science, and lifelong learning.

The vision of the School of Education and Communication is to build for the future through learning, communication, and research, thereby preparing our students for mastering, locally and globally, the challenges that inevitably follow from continuous societal change.

About Sweden and Jönköping

- Jönköping lies at the southern end of Lake Vättern in one of Sweden's most economically prosperous regions. The municipality has a population of 125,100. Vättern is Sweden's second largest, and Europe's fifth largest, lake. The lake is known for its clear and cold waters and is a catchment area for drinking water, supplying some 250,000 people.
- Stockholm, Göteborg, Malmö and Copenhagen are all easily accessible in a few hours by car, bus, train or plane from Jönköping.
- Annual attractions and events include the Jönköping Film Festival, the traditional Market Day, Children's Culture Days and the Dance Festival. Jönköping also offers a wide selection of music performances given by both amateurs and professionals, often at the Jönköping Concert Hall.
   There are also a number of theatrical societies and stages, some 15 libraries, and 120 cultural societies.
- Jönköping is a logistics hub for the whole of south Sweden, and historically a centre for trade and commerce. This tradition is now carried on by the Elmia Exhibition Centre, today one of the most important venues for national and international conferences, events, and trade fairs.
- Jönköping has one of Sweden's largest swimming baths and fitness centers—the Rosenlundsbadet Centre—which has, in addition to the outdoor pools, two indoor facilities for swimming and other fitness activities.
