

French (FREN)

Morrissey

The French program is designed to promote North Park University's emphasis on foreign language proficiency and its mastery for professional purposes. It thus serves students beyond the initial two-semester linguistic aptitude (8 sh) required for graduation, by preparing them for graduate and related professional studies. In view of the fact that a command of French is a useful bargaining power in today's global economy, and a valuable asset in negotiations, let alone America's non-isolationist position around the world, the program seeks to encourage students in other disciplines, especially Political Science, Economics, Education, English Literature, Missionary work, and the Sciences, to seriously consider French as a necessary appendage to their areas of concentration.

The objective of French Studies is to give students basic exposure to French language in the context of French culture. Students who complete a major in French Studies should demonstrate an advanced intermediate proficiency in reading, writing, and conversing in French, while being able to engage in analytical and abstract information in English about French culture. Students are highly encouraged to participate in North Park's program in Paris.

A French minor (20 sh) may lead to privileged opportunities in institutions like the World Bank, the UN, US Foreign Service etc., while the French major (36 sh), may offer an even wider spectrum of opportunities within the international market. To meet the university's requirements and students' career plans, the program adopts a series of strategic approaches such as reading, writing, listening, and speaking. It also offers students, usually in their junior year, the opportunity of a semester-long immersion in France to broaden their cultural and linguistic horizon.
