Availability:

I am a practicing attorney with a full load of client work. However, I am available during business hours by email or phone. Please feel free to call or email if you have a question. I will schedule in-person meetings on campus by appointment as I am able.

Course Description:

NOTE: The first class will be held on Wednesday, January 22nd. There will be one make-up session during the quad at a time and place to be designated after commencement of classes. The class schedule is presented as if the final class is March 5th. If possible, one of the scheduled classes will be held during the quad so that the final class is held on February 26th.

This course seeks to provide the basic principles of law that govern the relationship between a business and those who work for it. We will review the regulatory systems that implement and enforce federal and state laws, and we will explore cases that arise out of workplace disputes.

This course is applicable to both for-profit and nonprofit situations. While there are some ways in which for-profit businesses and nonprofits differ in the ways that they manage human resources, in most instances they are the same.

My goal is not to train you to be an employment lawyer. Rather, it is to help you identify legal issues that are inherent in employment relationships so that you can more effectively deal with them. Your knowledge of employment law will be a valuable asset no matter where your career might take you.

Introductory Comments:

Over the course of my career, I have worked with clients who are highly competent in managing their human resource function – and many who are not. It is my hope and expectation that this class will teach you to recognize the importance of a solid HR program and give you the resources to create one.

Course Materials:

REQUIRED

Employment Law for Business, 7th Edition (ISBN: 978-0-07-352496-2)

RESOURCES

Additional Resources are posted in Moodle.

Essential IDEA Objectives:

1. Gain factual knowledge about the management of human resources in a business setting.
2. Learn basic statutory law and common law principles that apply to everyday workplace issues.
3. Develop specific skills, competencies, and points of view needed by those who work in human resource offices or have personnel management as an essential function of their job.

Specific Course Objectives:

1. Understand the most important federal and state laws and regulations.
2. Understand the concept of “at-will” employment and its many exceptions.
3. Understand how workplace issues result in both good and bad case law.
4. Learn how to analyze and resolve common workplace situations.
5. Learn how to develop and implement personnel policies and procedures.

Course Methodology:

Our review of this important and complex area of the law must be accomplished in the course of seven weeks. This is a challenge. Our textbook is a very good resource for reviewing history, policy, and interesting cases. We will discover that simple legal principles can become complicated because of the unique “facts and circumstances” of each case.

We will highlight the most important principles by reading and lecture, and we will apply them to actual case situations in class discussions and group work.

It is imperative that each week’s reading be completed before class and that your weekly written reports are uploaded to Moodle prior to class for discussion purposes. I intend for you to teach each other, and there is no better way to do this than to make you responsible for the teaching role.

Computer Requirements:

In order to effectively participate in and successfully complete this course, you must have access to a computer and a high-speed internet connection. If at all possible, bring your laptops to class. Please visit <http://www.northpark.edu/Campus-Life-and-Services/Information-Technology/Network/Minimum-Requirements> for information on computer requirements.

Student Responsibilities:

I expect students to attend every class. There are only seven classes in the quad, and this is barely enough time for presenting the material involved. I believe that student involvement in class discussion is key to maintaining interest in the topic, and I design assignments to enhance your ability to engaged with your classmates. When papers are handed in, I expect them to be formatted using the APA guidelines.

Instructor Responsibilities:

I will present a range of topics that are related to the law and practice surrounding human resource management. I use the required text (Bennett-Alexander) as a resource but supplement it with materials from a practitioner's everyday resources. I will grade papers within the week of their submission.

POLICY STATEMENTS

Academic Honesty

In keeping with our Christian heritage and commitment, North Park University and the School of Business and Nonprofit Management are committed to the highest possible ethical and moral standards. Just as we will constantly strive to live up to these high standards, we expect our students to do the same. To that end, cheating of any sort will not be tolerated. Students who are discovered cheating are subject to discipline up to and including failure of a course and expulsion.

Our definition of cheating includes but is not limited to:

1. Plagiarism – the use of another’s work as one’s own without giving credit to the individual. This includes using materials from the internet.
2. Copying another’s answers on an examination.
3. Deliberately allowing another to copy one’s answers or work.
4. Signing an attendance roster for another who is not present.

In the special instance of group work, the instructor will make clear his/her expectations with respect to individual vs. collaborative work. A violation of these expectations may be considered cheating as well. For further information on this subject you may refer to the Academic Dishonesty section of the University’s online catalog.

In conclusion, it is our mission to prepare each student for a life of significance and service. Honesty and ethical behavior are the foundation upon which such lives are built. We therefore expect the highest standards of each student in this regard.

Attendance Policy for Graduate Courses

The graduate courses in the SBNM are all 7 weeks in length. Missing one class session is allowed without penalty as long as all readings and assignments are made up by the student within a reasonable time period (the following week). Failing to log into an online course site for an entire week is allowed, but a penalty may be applied at the instructor’s discretion. Missing a second class session is allowed only in unusual circumstances by prior arrangement with the instructor. Since this represents almost 30% of the engagement time for the course, the student runs the risk of receiving a lower overall grade for the class. Faculty are encouraged to drop the course grade by a full letter grade in this situation. A student who misses three classes (or the equivalent for an online class) will automatically fail the course, unless the student drops the course before the seventh week of class. Students who drop a course will be held responsible for tuition, based upon the current North Park University policy outlined in the University Catalog (found on the NPU website).

Attendance Policy for Undergraduate Courses

Attendance and participation are vital. Thus, students are expected to attend every class session, and to arrive on time – tardiness is undesirable and disruptive to your fellow classmates. This course has a strict requirement of documented, advance notification. If you are unable to attend any class session, you are to inform me (preferably by email) prior to that session. You need to provide a reason for your absence. Failure to provide advance notification will result in an unexcused absence. Be advised that poor attendance can affect your grade adversely

APA Requirement

The School of Business and Nonprofit Management (SBNM) has adopted the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (APA) as the standard and required format for all written assignments in SBNM courses.

Our goal in adopting the APA Manual is to enhance student learning by:

- 1) Improving student's writing skills.
- 2) Standardizing the required format of all written assignments in all SBNM courses.
- 3) Emphasizing the importance of paper mechanics, grammatical constructs, and the necessity of proper citations.
- 4) Holding students accountable for high quality written work.

If you are unfamiliar with the requirements of the APA Manual, we recommend that you purchase the reference manual and/or that you consult one or more of the suggested resources as listed on the Student Resources section of the SBNM website. It is your responsibility to learn and ensure that all written work is formatted according to the standards of the APA Manual.

Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities who believe that they may need accommodations in this class are encouraged to contact your program's office (Business: 773-244-6270). Please do so as soon as possible to better ensure that such accommodations are implemented in a timely manner.
